ASTHMA ADVOCATES

EZINNE CHINEMERE

I have been working in asthma in some capacity since 2012, starting my work doing asthma home visits and environmental assessments in Baltimore. I have had the great privilege to expand my work and knowledge by doing asthma telehealth in different states, teaching health educators and community health workers, and most recently using my dissertation to highlight the inequities in asthma care among black and brown children/families.

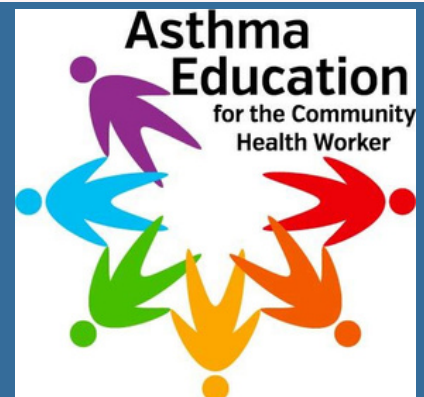

ASTHMA EDUCATION FOR THE COMMUNITY HEALTHWORKER TEAM

WHAT THE PROGRAM PROVIDES

- Ensures that community health workers receive a consistent high-quality curriculum developed by Certified Asthma Educators
- Provides an effective, nationally available low-cost program
- Facilitates community health workers' communication with clinical mentors for professional development

LORENE ALBA

Lorene develops and delivers asthma management education and content through her chronic disease consulting company, LEA Creative. This includes virtual and in-person education for patients and their caregivers, health educators, and clinicians. She writes patient-facing articles for Asthma.net and DailyBreath.com and moderates their online communities. She is currently providing asthma home visitor training (AAE's Asthma Training for the CHW, health literacy, and cultural sensitivity) for community health workers for the state of Maryland.

JAN ST GEORGE

It wasn't until I took the AE-C exam and began doing Home Asthma Visits 10 years ago that I really began to learn about Asthma. Before then, I understood the pathophysiology, diagnostic testing, medication mgmt. etc...but I only saw the patients with severe exacerbations in the ED and ICU.

I've learned that a lot of these "non-compliant" patients had a world of barriers that I never really considered. Barriers that impeded their care and management. Asthma is a very challenging disease to manage.

Patient education is the first step to help patients and their families understand what is happening inside of them, Action Plans and peak flow monitoring- all taught to help them manage their asthma. I have always felt that knowledge is power and I feel privileged to share what I have learned with these patients. They are so appreciative when something is explained so they can understand why.

BOEHRINGER INGELHEIM TO CAP OUT OF POCKET INHALER COSTS AT $35 PER MONTH

Pharmaceutical manufacturer Boehringer Ingelheim has announced a $35 per month cap on out-of-pocket costs for all of the company’s inhaler products for eligible patients, according to a news release. The program will “dramatically reduce costs at the pharmacy counter” for patients who are under- or uninsured.

The out-of-pocket cost cap will go into effect on June 1, 2024. The list of inhalers includes:

- Ipratropium bromide HFA (Atrovent HFA) inhalation aerosol
- Ipratropium bormide and albuterol (Combivent Respimat) inhalation spray
- Spiriva HandiHaler (tiotropium bromide inhalation powder)
- Spiriva Respimat 1.25 mcg (tiotropium bromide) Inhalation Spray
- Spiriva Respimat 2.5 mcg (tiotropium bromide) Inhalation Spray
- Stiolto Respimat (tiotropium bromide and olodaterol) Inhalation Spray
- Striverdi Respimat (olodaterol) Inhalation Spray

ASSOCIATION BETWEEN E-CIGARETTE USE AND ASTHMA AMONG US ADOLESCENTS: YOUTH RISK BEHAVIOR SURVEILLANCE SYSTEM 2015–2019

Background

Previous studies have suggested that e-cigarette use, which has increased rapidly among US adolescents, may cause respiratory distress. This cross-sectional study aimed to investigate the factors associated with e-cigarette use and the relationship between e-cigarette use and asthma among US adolescents.

Methods

Data from the Youth Risk Behavior Surveillance System between 2015 and 2019 were analyzed, and multivariable logistic regression was used to identify demographic and behavioral factors associated with e-cigarette use. Stratified analyses were conducted to assess the relationship between e-cigarette use and asthma among adolescents by previous combustible product use.

- Males, previous substance use, and depression linked to more e-cigarette use.
- Hispanic teens had lower e-cigarette odds than White peers in Texas.
- The association between e-cigarette use and asthma among adolescents was examined.
- A stronger link was found in those who had never used other combustible products.
- Public health strategies are needed for e-cigarette use among US adolescents.

FDA APPROVES XOLAIR® (OMALIZUMAB) AS FIRST AND ONLY MEDICINE FOR CHILDREN AND ADULTS WITH ONE OR MORE FOOD ALLERGIES

- Approval is based on data from the NIH-sponsored Phase III OUtMATCH study, which showed a significantly higher proportion of food allergy patients as young as 1 year treated with Xolair could tolerate small amounts of peanut, milk, egg and cashew without an allergic reaction, compared to placebo
- More than 40% of children and more than half of adults with food allergies have experienced a severe reaction at least once
- Detailed OUtMATCH results were featured in a late-breaking symposium at the 2024 AAAAI Annual Meeting

EAST HANOVER, N.J., Feb. 16, 2024 -- Novartis announced that the US Food and Drug Administration (FDA) has approved Xolair® (omalizumab) for the reduction of allergic reactions, including anaphylaxis, that may occur with accidental exposure to one or more foods in adult and pediatric patients aged 1 year and older with IgE-mediated food allergy. People taking Xolair for food allergies should continue to avoid all foods they are allergic to (commonly referred to as "food allergen avoidance"). Xolair should not be used for the emergency treatment of any allergic reactions, including anaphylaxis. Immunoglobulin E (IgE)-mediated food allergies are the most common type and are typically characterized by the rapid onset of symptoms following exposure to certain food allergens. Xolair is the first and only FDA-approved medicine to reduce allergic reactions in people with one or more food allergies. Xolair is widely available and can now be prescribed for appropriate patients with IgE-mediated food allergy in the US.

AAE AND UAB: IMPROVING ASTHMA EDUCATION TOGETHER

AAE conducted our AE-C Exam Preparation and Review Course for the amazing team at University of Alabama Birmingham, January 26 and 27, 2024. Jointly supported by UAB and EPA, there were 39 participants! We are grateful for their dedication and are so proud of their vision.

We are committed to support their efforts to fortify their program and we will provide mentorship to each individual seeking to obtain AE-C Certification.

Contact us to set up a consultation if your program is ready to take the next step with AAE!

This course is designed as a review for individuals who actively engage in the education of persons with asthma and wish to pursue certification/recertification as an asthma educator. AAE's course is taught by credentialed asthma educators (AE-C, Asthma Educator-Certified) and is based on the NAECB detailed content outline. The course content includes:

- Epidemiology
- Pathophysiology
- Factors contributing to acute and chronic asthma
- Patient and family assessment
- Asthma management: pharmacological, behavioral and environmental interventions
- Development of an asthma action plan
- Program outcomes
- Referral and professional networking,
- Spirometry for the health care professional

NEW AAE MEMBERSHIP ONLINE COMMUNITY

Welcome

Welcome to your new AAE Community! The AAE Community will allow you to interact regularly and easily with peers, experts, and organizational staff. We feel this is an ideal way to enhance our organization's benefits to you, our members.

Within AAE Community, members have:

- The ability to post questions in forums where peers and experts from across the industry can respond with their insights and ideas.
- The ability to share your own expertise in response to the questions of others.
- Opportunities to build your network through formal connections, private messaging, and other options.
- A robust and easy-to-access resource library, where you can download what you need when you need it.

As you get started,

- Check out the interest-based groups to see what other people are already posting.
- Search the member lists to see who is in the community. We are a small, but mighty group. We know you will surely find some familiar faces!
- Send a connection request to colleagues that you know or want to know.
- Introduce yourself in the topical groups.
- Be sure to complete your profile, including a profile photo, so that people can easily search for you by expertise, interest, or goal.

Thank you for your ongoing contributions to our organization. We hope to see you around AAE Community as we continue to advance our industry and to support one another.
